B. Elaboration of the Content – Knowledge Landscape

The module was developed with the aim of giving a brief overview of policing major events for professionals who are responsible for planning and/or commanding such operations.

Following Introduction of the module (Chapter 1), Chapter 2 summarises the 'mainstream' philosophical framework of policing major events. Chapter 3 includes sections on the leader, the Command and Control Centre (C2C), the coordination of major events and the Security Planning Model of International Permanent Observatory (IPO Model). Chapter 4 concerns the obtaining and use of intelligence in policing major events and Chapter 5 covers the planning and execution aspects of major event security operations. Chapter 6 refers to contingency planning, monitoring a major event for disruptive incidents and responding and reacting to these incidents (crisis management). Chapter 7 introduces the typology, barriers to communication during major events and some best practices on how to overcome these barriers. Chapter 8 is concerned with aspects of logistics, human resources, public private partnerships in policing and research and development. Chapter 9 addresses two issues: the issue of operational debriefing and the issue of psychological intervention.

Lastly, Chapter 10 discusses the education and training needed for police decision-makers regarding the policing of major events.

C. Diagnostic Self Evaluation: My progress

Users can test their own knowledge on Policing Major Events at any time while using the online module through the My Progress section of the module. Test items, in the form of True/False questions, are pooled according to the recurring topics of the knowledge landscape. A random selection of the items will be offered to users every time they decide to take the self-test for each of the individual topics. Based on the outcomes of the self-test, users will receive feedback and reflection possibilities which enable them to increase their further professionalization in the domain of the module.
