

Call for Contributions to Issue No. 14 of the European Police Science and Research Bulletin, published by CEPOL – European Police College

Dear National Contact Points, Dear Research and Science Correspondents, Dear Lecturers, Trainers and Researchers on behalf of the Bulletin Editorial Team we are kindly asking you to disseminate this call to your national reference-points and also inviting you to personally contribute to the Bulletin.

Contributions are invited concerning the following areas:

- ✓ Articles or concise reviews of significant original research results in all areas of police science and research as well as of security research;
- ✓ Information about recently finalised or ongoing research projects or programmes in the field of police, policing or security research;
- ✓ Information about police research centres operating in Member States and CEPOL's cooperation partners;
- ✓ Information about publications of police and security research issued outside the CEPOL framework;
- ✓ Reviews of methodological developments in police science and research;
- ✓ Information about forthcoming international police science and research conferences, seminars, and symposia.

Submissions have to be sent to: research.bulletin@cepol.europa.eu

Authors shall observe the "Manuscript Submission Guidelines" available for download from the Bulletin's section at CEPOL's webpage at:

<https://www.cepol.europa.eu/science-research/european-police-science-and-research-bulletin/how-contribute>

All contributions for the 14th issue shall be submitted as soon as possible. Deadlines for

- 1st drafts at the latest by TUESDAY, 1 MARCH 2016
- Final versions at latest by FRIDAY, 15 APRIL 2016.

Thank you for your cooperation; looking forward to contributions from your country!
On behalf of the Editorial Board,

Dr. Detlef Nogala
Research & Knowledge Management Officer, CEPOL